

Raw Gaia

Sussex based company Raw Gaia lead the way in harnessing the living energy of plants to create the finest and freshest beauty products.

In Greek Mythology Gaia was the Goddess of the Earth. Followers of Gaia today concentrate on the return to living at one with nature. Sussex based skincare producers Raw Gaia embody this spirit totally by creating wonderful beauty products designed to help us all get a little closer to a natural living energy.

Lisa Lennon has been dedicated to using natural organic produce for years and as a committed Vegan, it seemed obvious to turn to nature's bounty to ease an ongoing dry skin condition. Inspired by her partner Hector's raw food diet, it made sense to try to develop a cream following the same principles, and after much trial and error Lisa's first 'living' skincare product was created.

Known as 'For Her Daughters Living Moisturiser', the cream is still hand made utilising a special low temperature process and using only organic, cold pressed butters and oils, infused with essential oils. Such was its initial success that Lisa soon realised that she had created a completely new concept in skincare. From this, the couple went on to create Raw Gaia's complete range, revolutionising natural skincare, to much critical acclaim.

Lisa and Hector believe that using raw, living ingredients nourish the body through the still present, living energy. Ingredients are always organic and/or wildcrafted and they endeavour to source all of these raw materials through fair trade. All products are endorsed by The Vegan Society and are totally cruelty free. They are of course, completely chemical free (absolutely no Parabens) and smell wonderful.

They offer an extensive range, including the usual toners cleansers and moisturisers, along with an impressive selection of face packs, massage oils and body butters, Raw Gaia have also developed a super gentle Baby Range with healing Calendula, Camomile, and the rare and precious, Rose Otto.

Lisa and Hector's passion and subject knowledge is obvious and the website is incredibly informative and reassuring. The products themselves are high quality, natural, organic, effective and gorgeous to use. I can't think of a better way to feel good about a beauty regime than to embrace products designed by nature itself as the most effective way of preserving both our inner and outer beauty
